Research Agency

Roma Tre University envisages the central role of research for the advancement of knowledge and the achievement of significant scientific, cultural, social and economic objectives. In this sense it considers research as a primary function, fostering its development as well as its essential connection with teaching. Roma Tre Students are therefore surrounded by a high-level international research environment that contributes, at each step of their study programme, to encourage and develop their skills.

Roma Tre promotes and supports basic research in all its scientific-disciplinary areas, enhancing its original and innovative contents. Roma Tre also promotes applied research focused on the development and transfer of new technologies, always respecting the aims and responsibilities deriving from its public nature.

The Research Agency was established in April 2018 with the aim of pursuing those objectives. The Agency consists of two offices: the National Research Office and the European and International Research Office.

The Research Agency ensures an integrated and efficient advisory system, management and professional support, for the Departments and academic community, necessary for the administration, improvement and enhancement of the research activities through promotional activities, counselling, editing management and support, project dealing and management, both planning and implementation stage, in the reporting and internal audit of financed contracts, as well as information activities and updating regarding new opportunities and funding models in European and international fields.

The Agency also provides its support in the administrative proceedings about PhDs and Phd Schools of the Departments, on the research fellowships procedures, on the Research Repository management and during the submission of National and Regional projects.

The Agency is also responsible for supporting the innovation and technology transfer activities and all activities related to University spin-off creation, considering that most of exchanges between academic research and entrepreneurship occur through those entrepreneurial realities.

The Agency is supported by a Scientific Board with the purpose of an active changing of information and expertise on the political implementation of University's research. The Scientific Board is appointed by the Rector and consists of six members, one of them with the function of Coordinator.

Research Repository

The evaluation of the research activities carried out in universities has gained significant importance both for the entire university system as well as within each single university. Roma Tre has hence looked at the possibility of providing the University with suitable information tools that could best support the monitoring and evaluation of the research activities carried out in its departments. Among these the creation of a University Research Repository was considered particularly important.

The Research Repository is meant to fulfil other fundamental needs in addition to its primary use, in order for it to significantly contribute to the development of the university.

Research Universities should be able to more and more successfully dialogue with the economic and productive reality of the country. The university departments should disseminate to the productive world the issues the research is being facing and their results.

The repository allows to find, with reference to both the individual researcher and the various research groups, information related to 'research products' such as:

- Publications of books;
- Publications of chapters or essays in books;
- Publication of articles in scientific reviews;
- Publication of articles on conference proceedings;
- Other products (patents, projects, multi-media products etc.).

Libraries

The University Library System (SBA) offers qualified resources and services in teaching and research, thus meeting the informative needs of the university community. It consists of seven specialised libraries that collect the book heritage of close related disciplines.

Some libraries are organised into sections located in the different university locations and perceived in order to be as close as possible to students and professors.

In addition to the University Library System, Roma Tre owns other important libraries, as for example the "Guillaume Apollinaire" library, located in the Italian-French Studies Centre.

It also hosts the book heritage of the Italo Latin American Institute, partially available in the Science library and in the Political Studies library.

The University Library System provides over 950,000 paper, electronic and digital documents, and it is constantly updated in order to offer the most advanced IT resources.

Research and Consultancy Contracts

Among the university's essential tools of knowledge transfer and direct interaction with society are its third-party commissioned services and commercial activities, that is the monetization of the knowledge produced by the university (as per Article 66 of Italian Presidential Decree 382/80 – Commissioned Research and Consultancy, and Article 49 of Royal Decree 1592/1933 – Tariffed Services – Revenue for educational activities, seminars and conferences carried out on behalf of third parties).

The university supports the development of third-party activities in all disciplinary areas under the conviction idea that the commercial monetization of knowledge can also produce public and social assets of high innovative value.

A concrete example of this is the employment contract certification and work dispute mediation services offered by the University Contract Certification Commission, which was established in the university's Department of Economics under the Italian Ministry of Labour Decree No. 21/2011, and quickly assumed a leading role at the national level.

Promotion and dissemination of knowledge and culture

The university is committed to promoting and enhancing the initiatives of its departments to disseminate knowledge through the use of e-learning tools, free access to scientific publications in digital format via the 1'e-press project and the support of the Roma Tre Education Foundation. Specific actions are planned to raise citizens' awareness of the importance of humanistic and scientific knowledge in general cultural and civic education. These actions will also be promoted through the university's Roma Tre Radio and audiovisual materials available at our Audiovisual Production Centre.

In terms of cultural dissemination, the central role is played by the activities of the Palladium Theatre, which hosts a variety of live shows and film festivals of international importance. The cultural activities of the university also include the promotion of the documentary heritage of the Mauro Laeng School and Education Museum, the oldest museum of its kind.

PhDs

A PhD represents the highest academic degree awarded by Italian universities. The PhD title is awarded after the completion of a three year-study and research programme whose access is regulated by a call for admissions. Admission to a PhD course is reserved to applicants holding a Master's degree. Citizens of any state and without age limits are admitted, provided that the qualification obtained has been previously recognised as equivalent to an Italian academic qualification. Every year the Italian Ministry of Education, University and Reserach states on the accreditation of courses that can be activated; each University, upon proposal of the Departments, establishes courses, number of places and number of scholarships.

Roma Tre offers a wide range of PhD courses in the sectors in which it develops a specific, wide, qualified and continuous research activity recognised all over the world.

Calls for proposals

Funding from competitive tenders generally foresee a public call for proposal characterised by the participation of several subjects (universities, public/private foundations and institutions, research institutions, departments, research groups or units etc.) and by a selection through a refereeing system.

Concerning the above mentioned funding resources, the EU Projects Office supports professors and researchers in identifying the best research funding opportunities at a local, regional, national, European and international level.

Hereinafter the main reference links:

National funding

- PRIN: Research projects of significant national interest
- FIRB: Support to basic research
- Future in Research' programme whose aim is to enhance the generational turnover at universities funding fundamental research projects proposed by young researchers.
- SIR Programme (Scientific Independence of young Researchers), whose aim is to support young researchers in the start-up phase of their own independent research activity

Orientation for Prospective Students

One of Roma Tre University's institutional tasks is to promote and implement orientation for prospective students with the primary objective to allow them to choose their course of studies and decide on their future career, responsibly.

With this purpose in mind, the University's Orientation Office has been carrying, for many years, the following initiatives:

- Self-guided orientation
- University Open Days

Secondary (High) schools wishing to receive information can contact the Orientation Office indicating the name of the school, any potential course of studies of interest, main correspondence address and those of any branches, the school's director and delegate for outgoing orientation, telephone number, fax and email of the school and of the delegate. Once this data is made available, the school will be included in a mailing list and informed of all the initiatives promoted by our University.

As part of the orientation activities for prospective students, the Orientation Office is present at events such as the Roma Tre University's Orientation Day and external events such as the Student Fair.

Innovation, industrial research and development projects

Roma Tre University is committed to promoting projects concerning process innovation, the organization of SMEs, industrial research and experimentation consistent with the principles of Industry 4.0.

In particular, the university aims to develop Industry 4.0 compliant industrial research projects and solutions that, through technology transfer initiatives, address the management of the security and privacy of infrastructures, systems and services.

The Prorector for Innovation is also focused on the development of an innovation, start-up support and technology transfer ecosystem across the Lazio Region, with a view to promoting:

- Dialogue, collaboration and synergies among all stakeholders, including universities, research centres, young graduates, undergraduates, companies, trade associations, public and private incubators and accelerators, institutions, chambers of commerce, investors, financiers and so on.
- The identification and development of technological and innovative trajectories that can stimulate regional economic growth and excellence. Start-ups and self-entrepreneurship

The promotion of entrepreneurial culture and innovative start-ups is an important strategic objective of the university.

The project Dock3, launched in 2018, constitutes its flagship initiative in this regard. Dock 3 involves students from all departments in a multi-stage process that aims to encourage students and young researchers to become aware of their talents and to enter and play an active part in the ecosystem of innovative start-ups.

The university is also engaged in the preparation of a pre-accelerator, equipped with suitable spaces and equipment, as well as in the establishment of a coordination table with the major universities in Rome and with local institutions in order to exploit all possible synergies in favour of young people wanting to create a start-up.

Statute and regulations

Roma Tre University Statuto provides for the general principles concerning the organisation and operation of the University. Under the Constitution and under law no. 168 of 1989, the statute represents the highest degree of autonomy for the University. Approved by the Academic Senate, following the favourable opinion from the Board of Trustees, it is then issued by the Rector after the completion of the ministerial control procedure, as provided by art. 6 of law no. 168 of 1989.

The University regulations provide for specific aspects of the university activity and constitute a secondary normative source comparing to the statute. They are both adopted in the exercise of the University autonomy. They are issued by Rectoral decree after being approved by the competent bodies.

History and Values

Roma Tre University is a young university thought for young people. Founded in 1992, it has rapidly grown in terms of enrolments as well as in the number of academic courses offered. It has gained a very good reputation in the most prominent academic rankings, especially among the most recently founded institutions.

Roma Tre University is organized in 12 departments offering Bachelor's and Master's degrees, Postgraduate and Advanced courses, PhDs and Specialisation Schools.

A dynamic, modern and international university that has immediately characterised as the vital lever of the capital's urban development, within which it is now deeply rooted, contributing in changing the city's identity with a persevering process of restructuring and re-using abandoned industrial buildings, converting them into factories of knowledge and research.

Among its founding values, Roma Tre assumes the promotion and organization of high-quality international research, the excellence in higher education as well as in the development and dissemination of knowledge, the environmental protection, the international solidarity, the principles of gender equity and the evaluation and recognition of merit.

Teaching and research, in all disciplinary areas, constantly interact and target a global world, thus promoting the upgrading and enrichment of knowledge; they combine their action with the third mission, considered both as technology transfer and as a projection of higher education activities on the territory.

The international dimension is considered a strategic aspect for the University, which adheres, among others, to the inspirational principles of the Magna Charta Universitatum and identifies itself in the principles and tools of the European Research and Higher education Area.

Research Development

For an idea to come to fruition requires not only the hard work of university researchers and university, but also the collaboration of industrial partners and other external parties interested in the development and industrialization of scientific research products and investors interested in financing research, development and marketing activities. During this last phase of development, it is especially important to consider the original research aims that lead to the conception and marketing of the idea or product, as well as respect for individuals, progress in society, youth development, focused particularly on recent graduates, doctoral students and scholarship recipients, youth employment, and sustainable development that respects nature and the environment.

Significant positive impacts on society can only be achieved through strong ties with institutions governing industrial policy and regulating public and private research and economic development funding. Accordingly, Roma Tre University aims to play a primary role in relations with companies and investors throughout all phases of the complex process leading from original conception to industrialization of the final product.

To this end, various strategic and operational meetings with the top management of major Italian and foreign productive, economic and professional parties with interests in Italy are ongoing and will be further intensified through the "Roma Tre Meets the Business World" initiative.

The development of information and communication technologies and the diffusion of mass production and consumption models have triggered and amplified a variety of global environmental crises, such as the climate crisis, and local crises, such as pollution and health risks, which are compromising the quality of life and mortgaging the living conditions of future generations.

For this reason, the university considers it strategic to give maximum importance to aspects of environmental and energy sustainability that are essential to safeguarding the quality of life of individuals and of human society in general.

Research Agency

Roma Tre University envisages the central role of research for the advancement of knowledge and the achievement of significant scientific, cultural, social and economic objectives. In this sense it considers research as a primary function, fostering its development as well as its essential connection with teaching. Roma Tre Students are therefore surrounded by a high-level international research environment that contributes, at each step of their study programme, to encourage and develop their skills.

Roma Tre promotes and supports basic research in all its scientific-disciplinary areas, enhancing its original and innovative contents. Roma Tre also promotes applied research focused on the development and transfer of new technologies, always respecting the aims and responsibilities deriving from its public nature.

The Research Agency was established in April 2018 with the aim of pursuing those objectives. The Agency consists of two offices: the National Research Office and the European and International Research Office.

The Research Agency ensures an integrated and efficient advisory system, management and professional support, for the Departments and academic community, necessary for the administration, improvement and enhancement of the research activities through promotional activities, counselling, editing management and support, project dealing and management, both planning and implementation stage, in the reporting and internal audit of financed contracts, as well as information activities and updating regarding new opportunities and funding models in European and international fields.

The Agency also provides its support in the administrative proceedings about PhDs and Phd Schools of the Departments, on the research fellowships procedures, on the Research Repository management and during the submission of National and Regional projects.

Research Repository

The evaluation of the research activities carried out in universities has gained significant importance both for the entire university system as well as within each single university. Roma Tre has hence looked at the possibility of providing the University with suitable information tools that could best support the monitoring and evaluation of the research activities carried out in its departments. Among these the creation of a University Research Repository was considered particularly important.

The Research Repository is meant to fulfil other fundamental needs in addition to its primary use, in order for it to significantly contribute to the development of the university.

Research Universities should be able to more and more successfully dialogue with the economic and productive reality of the country. The university departments should disseminate to the productive world the issues the research is being facing and their results.

The repository allows to find, with reference to both the individual researcher and the various research groups, information related to 'research products' such as:

- Publications of books;
- Publications of chapters or essays in books;
- Publication of articles in scientific reviews;
- Publication of articles on conference proceedings;
- Other products (patents, projects, multi-media products etc.).

Libraries

The University Library System (SBA) offers qualified resources and services in teaching and research, thus meeting the informative needs of the university community. It consists of seven specialised libraries that collect the book heritage of close related disciplines.

Some libraries are organised into sections located in the different university locations and perceived in order to be as close as possible to students and professors.

In addition to the University Library System, Roma Tre owns other important libraries, as for example the "Guillaume Apollinaire" library, located in the Italian-French Studies Centre.

It also hosts the book heritage of the Italo Latin American Institute, partially available in the Science library and in the Political Studies library.

The University Library System provides over 950,000 paper, electronic and digital documents, and it is constantly updated in order to offer the most advanced IT resources.

Research and Consultancy Contracts

Among the university's essential tools of knowledge transfer and direct interaction with society are its third-party commissioned services and commercial activities, that is the monetization of the knowledge produced by the university (as per Article 66 of Italian Presidential Decree 382/80 – Commissioned Research and Consultancy, and Article 49 of Royal Decree 1592/1933 – Tariffed Services – Revenue for educational activities, seminars and conferences carried out on behalf of third parties).

The university supports the development of third-party activities in all disciplinary areas under the conviction idea that the commercial monetization of knowledge can also produce public and social assets of high innovative value.

A concrete example of this is the employment contract certification and work dispute mediation services offered by the University Contract Certification Commission, which was established in the university's Department of Economics under the Italian Ministry of Labour Decree No. 21/2011, and quickly assumed a leading role at the national level.

Promotion and dissemination of knowledge and culture

The university is committed to promoting and enhancing the initiatives of its departments to disseminate knowledge through the use of e-learning tools, free access to scientific publications in digital format via the 1'e-press project and the support of the Roma Tre Education Foundation. Specific actions are planned to raise citizens' awareness of the importance of humanistic and scientific knowledge in general cultural and civic education. These actions will also be promoted through the university's Roma Tre Radio and audiovisual materials available at our Audiovisual Production Centre.

In terms of cultural dissemination, the central role is played by the activities of the Palladium Theatre, which hosts a variety of live shows and film festivals of international importance. The cultural activities of the university also include the promotion of the documentary heritage of the Mauro Laeng School and Education Museum, the oldest museum of its kind.

PhDs

A PhD represents the highest academic degree awarded by Italian universities. The PhD title is awarded after the completion of a three year-study and research programme whose access is regulated by a call for admissions. Admission to a PhD course is reserved to applicants holding a Master's degree. Citizens of any state and without age limits are admitted, provided that the qualification obtained has been previously recognised as equivalent to an Italian academic qualification. Every year the Italian Ministry of Education, University and Reserach states on the accreditation of courses that can be activated; each University, upon proposal of the Departments, establishes courses, number of places and number of scholarships.

Roma Tre offers a wide range of PhD courses in the sectors in which it develops a specific, wide, qualified and continuous research activity recognised all over the world.

Calls for proposals

Funding from competitive tenders generally foresee a public call for proposal characterised by the participation of several subjects (universities, public/private foundations and institutions, research institutions, departments, research groups or units etc.) and by a selection through a refereeing system.

Concerning the above mentioned funding resources, the EU Projects Office supports professors and researchers in identifying the best research funding opportunities at a local, regional, national, European and international level.

Hereinafter the main reference links:

National funding

- PRIN: Research projects of significant national interest
- FIRB: Support to basic research
- Future in Research' programme whose aim is to enhance the generational turnover at universities funding fundamental research projects proposed by young researchers.
- SIR Programme (Scientific Independence of young Researchers), whose aim is to support young researchers in the start-up phase of their own independent research activity

Orientation for Prospective Students

One of Roma Tre University's institutional tasks is to promote and implement orientation for prospective students with the primary objective to allow them to choose their course of studies and decide on their future career, responsibly.

With this purpose in mind, the University's Orientation Office has been carrying, for many years, the following initiatives:

- Self-guided orientation
- University Open Days

Secondary (High) schools wishing to receive information can contact the Orientation Office indicating the name of the school, any potential course of studies of interest, main correspondence address and those of any branches, the school's director and delegate for outgoing orientation, telephone number, fax and email of the school and of the delegate. Once this data is made available, the school will be included in a mailing list and informed of all the initiatives promoted by our University.

As part of the orientation activities for prospective students, the Orientation Office is present at events such as the Roma Tre University's Orientation Day and external events such as the Student Fair.

The Working Group on University Orientation (GLOA), in collaboration with the Orientation Office promotes and coordinates orientation policies for prospective students.

Innovation, industrial research and development projects

Roma Tre University is committed to promoting projects concerning process innovation, the organization of SMEs, industrial research and experimentation consistent with the principles of Industry 4.0.

In particular, the university aims to develop Industry 4.0 compliant industrial research projects and solutions that, through technology transfer initiatives, address the management of the security and privacy of infrastructures, systems and services.

The Prorector for Innovation is also focused on the development of an innovation, start-up support and technology transfer ecosystem across the Lazio Region, with a view to promoting:

- Dialogue, collaboration and synergies among all stakeholders, including universities, research centres, young graduates, undergraduates, companies, trade associations, public and private incubators and accelerators, institutions, chambers of commerce, investors, financiers and so on.
- The identification and development of technological and innovative trajectories that can stimulate regional economic growth and excellence. Example include the university's proposal to establish a regional cyber security competence centre and its participation as a key research organization in the Lazio Region's Call for Strategic Projects.

Start-ups and self-entrepreneurship

The promotion of entrepreneurial culture and innovative start-ups is an important strategic objective of the university.

The project Dock3, launched in 2018, constitutes its flagship initiative in this regard. Dock 3 involves students from all departments in a multi-stage process that aims to encourage students and young researchers to become aware of their talents and to enter and play an active part in the ecosystem of innovative start-ups.

The university is also engaged in the preparation of a pre-accelerator, equipped with suitable spaces and equipment, as well as in the establishment of a coordination table with the major universities in Rome and with local institutions in order to exploit all possible synergies in favour of young people wanting to create a start-up.

Statute and regulations

Roma Tre University Statuto provides for the general principles concerning the organisation and operation of the University. Under the Constitution and under law no. 168 of 1989, the statute represents the highest degree of autonomy for the University. Approved by the Academic Senate, following the favourable opinion from the Board of Trustees, it is then issued by the Rector after the completion of the ministerial control procedure, as provided by art. 6 of law no. 168 of 1989.

The University regulations provide for specific aspects of the university activity and constitute a secondary normative source comparing to the statute. They are both adopted in the exercise of the University autonomy. They are issued by Rectoral decree after being approved by the competent bodies.

History and Values

Roma Tre University is a young university thought for young people. Founded in 1992, it has rapidly grown in terms of enrolments as well as in the number of academic courses offered. It has gained a very good reputation in the most prominent academic rankings, especially among the most recently founded institutions.

Roma Tre University is organized in 12 departments offering Bachelor's and Master's degrees, Postgraduate and Advanced courses, PhDs and Specialisation Schools.

A dynamic, modern and international university that has immediately characterised as the vital lever of the capital's urban development, within which it is now deeply rooted, contributing in changing the city's identity with a persevering process of restructuring and re-using abandoned industrial buildings, converting them into factories of knowledge and research.

Among its founding values, Roma Tre assumes the promotion and organization of high-quality international research, the excellence in higher education as well as in the development and dissemination of knowledge, the environmental protection, the international solidarity, the principles of gender equity and the evaluation and recognition of merit.

Teaching and research, in all disciplinary areas, constantly interact and target a global world, thus promoting the upgrading and enrichment of knowledge; they combine their action with the third mission, considered both as technology transfer and as a projection of higher education activities on the territory.

The international dimension is considered a strategic aspect for the University, which adheres, among others, to the inspirational principles of the Magna Charta Universitatum and identifies itself in the principles and tools of the European Research and Higher education Area.

Research Development

For an idea to come to fruition requires not only the hard work of university researchers and university, but also the collaboration of industrial partners and other external parties interested in the development and industrialization of scientific research products and investors interested in financing research, development and marketing activities. During this last phase of development, it is especially important to consider the original research aims that lead to the conception and marketing of the idea or product, as well as respect for individuals, progress in society, youth development, focused particularly on recent graduates, doctoral students and scholarship recipients, youth employment, and sustainable development that respects nature and the environment.

Significant positive impacts on society can only be achieved through strong ties with institutions governing industrial policy and regulating public and private research and economic development funding. Accordingly, Roma Tre University aims to play a primary role in relations with companies and investors throughout all phases of the complex process leading from original conception to industrialization of the final product.

To this end, various strategic and operational meetings with the top management of major Italian and foreign productive, economic and professional parties with interests in Italy are ongoing and will be further intensified through the "Roma Tre Meets the Business World" initiative.

The development of information and communication technologies and the diffusion of mass production and consumption models have triggered and amplified a variety of global environmental crises, such as the climate crisis, and local crises, such as pollution and health risks, which are compromising the quality of life and mortgaging the living conditions of future generations.

For this reason, the university considers it strategic to give maximum importance to aspects of environmental and energy sustainability that are essential to safeguarding the quality of life of individuals and of human society in general.

Research Agency

Roma Tre University envisages the central role of research for the advancement of knowledge and the achievement of significant scientific, cultural, social and economic objectives. In this sense it considers research as a primary function, fostering its development as well as its essential connection with teaching. Roma Tre Students are therefore surrounded by a high-level international research environment that contributes, at each step of their study programme, to encourage and develop their skills.

Roma Tre promotes and supports basic research in all its scientific-disciplinary areas, enhancing its original and innovative contents. Roma Tre also promotes applied research focused on the development and transfer of new technologies, always respecting the aims and responsibilities deriving from its public nature.

The Research Agency was established in April 2018 with the aim of pursuing those objectives. The Agency consists of two offices: the National Research Office and the European and International Research Office.

The Research Agency ensures an integrated and efficient advisory system, management and professional support, for the Departments and academic community, necessary for the administration, improvement and enhancement of the research activities through promotional activities, counselling, editing management and support, project dealing and management, both planning and implementation stage, in the reporting and internal audit of financed contracts, as well as information activities and updating regarding new opportunities and funding models in European and international fields.

The Agency also provides its support in the administrative proceedings about PhDs and Phd Schools of the Departments, on the research fellowships procedures, on the Research Repository management and during the submission of National and Regional projects.

Research Repository

The evaluation of the research activities carried out in universities has gained significant importance both for the entire university system as well as within each single university. Roma Tre has hence looked at the possibility of providing the University with suitable information tools that could best support the monitoring and evaluation of the research activities carried out in its departments. Among these the creation of a University Research Repository was considered particularly important.

The Research Repository is meant to fulfil other fundamental needs in addition to its primary use, in order for it to significantly contribute to the development of the university.

Research Universities should be able to more and more successfully dialogue with the economic and productive reality of the country. The university departments should disseminate to the productive world the issues the research is being facing and their results.

The repository allows to find, with reference to both the individual researcher and the various research groups, information related to 'research products' such as:

- Publications of books;
- Publications of chapters or essays in books;
- Publication of articles in scientific reviews;
- Publication of articles on conference proceedings;
- Other products (patents, projects, multi-media products etc.).

Libraries

The University Library System (SBA) offers qualified resources and services in teaching and research, thus meeting the informative needs of the university community. It consists of seven specialised libraries that collect the book heritage of close related disciplines.

Some libraries are organised into sections located in the different university locations and perceived in order to be as close as possible to students and professors.

In addition to the University Library System, Roma Tre owns other important libraries, as for example the "Guillaume Apollinaire" library, located in the Italian-French Studies Centre.

It also hosts the book heritage of the Italo Latin American Institute, partially available in the Science library and in the Political Studies library.

The University Library System provides over 950,000 paper, electronic and digital documents, and it is constantly updated in order to offer the most advanced IT resources.
